The George Bush Presidential Library and Museum and the George Bush Presidential Library Foundation are pleased to begin Family History Month with a free genealogy workshop, “Discover Who You Really Are!” at the Bush Library and Museum on Saturday, Oct. 2, 2010.

Speakers:

Meg Hacker, director of Archival Operations, National Archives and Records Administration’s Fort Worth Southwest Regional Center – Exploration of NARA’s Federal records

Henry Hanson, Texas Research Ramblers – Participation in area associations for personal assistance, access to shared resources and community benefits

Susan Kaufman, manager, Clayton Library Center for Genealogical Research in Houston – Discovery of uncommon treasures within our reach

Bill Page, Texas A&M Library System – Utilization of local resources for wide-reaching results

Robert Vann, professional genealogist, entertainer, and character-actor, Family History Center in Huntsville – Introduction to genealogy, refresher course, and new assessment of old methods

Panel of Texas A&M University healthcare professionals/historians – Development of a family health history for personal use and for genealogical reasons

Representatives, Family History Research Center – Instruction and Assistance with LDS records and the local research facility

We encourage you to take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to glean information from genealogy professionals and enthusiasts, to ask questions and to find a community of fellow researchers who are always willing to assist you when you invariably hit that brick wall in your own research.

***This Free Workshop includes:

- Free Parking
